GENERAL INFORMATION

New Delhi:

The capital of India is a bustling metropolis that has an amazing mix of modernization and carefully preserved antiquity. Sprawled over the west bank of the river Yamuna, it is one of the fastest growing cities in India. New Delhi was built by a British architect Edward Lutyens in 1912 as the new capital of the British Raj. The Victorian architecture now intermingles with the city's high rise buildings. Concrete flyovers built to ease the growing traffic are interspersed with well laid gardens, Mughal tombs, forts and monuments.

The city traces its history to Mahabharata, the great epic tale of wars fought between estranged cousins, the Kauravas and the Pandavas for the city of Indraprastha. Historically, the city has long since been the foremost in political importance with successive dynasties choosing it as their seat of power, between the 13th and the 17th centuries. Old Delhi was founded by Mughal rulers who ruled the city in succession starting from Qutab-ub-din to Khiljis, Tughlaqs each, under a different name given to the city.

Climate / Temperature

Temperatures range from 19 °C to 38 °C

Sightseeing of Delhi

Food & Dining:

For over a thousand years, as one dynasty replaced the other, and one city gave way to a new citadel, Delhi toiled under the onslaught of invaders. Scythians, Parthians. Turks, Afghans, Mughals, and British, each came to Delhi, leaving behind a distinct stamp of their culture and style.

Tourists from all over the world started to visit the capital city of India to explore its rich historical and cultural heritage, creating a need for a style of cuisines familiar to them.

Delhi people love to eat out and have a large variety of restaurants and cuisine from all over the world from which to choose. There's something for every budget, from delicious Indian snacks at roadside stalls in Paharganj, Palika Bazaar and Janpath, to traditional north Indian/Mughlai cuisine at one of Delhi's many celebrated restaurants, to Western food at the likes of instantly recognizable names such as

KFC, McDonald's, Pizza Express, TGIF, Dominoes and Pizza Hut.

The best way to get acquainted with the Mughlai and North Indian Cuisine is to try a buffet which will enable you to choose from a wide selection and decide on your favourite type of Indian cooking. The vast buffets of luxury hotels are worth the splurge, their coffee shops are surprisingly affordable and, if you can afford it, their restaurants superlative; their bakeries are also excellent (open to non-guests). Many specialist restaurants regularly demonstrate expert cooking with themed food festivals.

Although locals tend to eat around nine, they do not linger; most restaurants close around eleven, but those with bars usually stay open until midnight. If you're looking for a late-night meal, you can eat in a top hotel, try a snack in Paharganj's round-the-clock rooftop cafés, or head to the markets of south Delhi. Wherever you eat, be careful of the water and salads.

Transport

being a planned & National Capital city, New Delhi has numerous arterial roads, some of which have an iconic status associated with them such as Rajpath, Janpath and Akbar Road. In 2005, private vehicles accounted for 30% of total transportation demand for the Delhi metropolitan area. As of 2008, 15 subways were operational. In 1971, the administrative responsibility of the Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) was transferred from Municipal Corporation of Delhi to Government of India following which DTC extended its operations to New Delhi. In 2007, there were 2700 bus stops in New Delhi, of which 200 were built and maintained by NDMC and the rest by DTC.

The Delhi Metro, constructed and operated by the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC), connects the city with the rest of the metropolis of Delhi. Under an agreement with NDMC, DMRC can acquire land for the construction of metro rail and stations in New Delhi without any financial implications. New Delhi Station is the second busiest, and one of the largest, in India. It handles over 300 trains each day, from 18 platforms connecting New Delhi with the rest of India.
